FAIR OPENS MONDAY NIGHT

World Exchange Close as Britain Fights the Panic

Gold Standard Is Abandoned During Crisis on Sunday

Norwegian, German, Austrian, Provincial Exchanges Closed Monday

LIMIT FRENCH, U. S.

Paris and New York Take Action to Uphold English Currency

By the Associated Press Faced with Great Britain's temporary suspension of the gold standard, world financial circles Monday moved to protect the international financial structure.
The stock exchanges in London, Berlin, Brussels, Oslo, Stockholm, Amsterdam, Bombay, Copenhagen, Vienna, Johannesburg and Calcutta were closed.
The Montreal exchange decided to remain open on a restricted basis.
The Bourse, in Paris, remained open but the official exchange market was closed and no official currency quotations were made.
The New York Stock Exchange opened but its governing board issued a notice prohibiting short-selling.
Confidence was expressed in numerous quarters that Britain would weather the financial storm successfully.
In Washington no adverse reaction of major importance was expected.

Britain Acts Sunday

Great Britain came off the gold standard Sunday and closed the London Stock Exchange Monday—for the first time since the panicky days of the World war.
The discount rate of the Bank of England was put up to 6 per cent for the first time in the nation's history except for war periods.
This precipitate action was taken after the foreign demands for gold had carried the gold balance of the Bank of England down to 650 million dollars, perilously low in view of the amounts only recently loaned it by the United States and France.
Britain's gold standard act was adopted in 1844, suspended during post-war inflation in 1919, but re-established in 1925.
Under the act, anybody could go to the bank with currency and demand gold. Now the government may refuse the demand. The gold standard act fixed the value of an ounce of gold as not less than $18.68 English money, or between 77 shillings 9 pence and 77 shillings 10½ pence.

Started in Holland

Premier MacDonald was called back from his country estate, Chequers, hurriedly Sunday following a panic on the Amsterdam Bourse Saturday. Trouble had been foreseen by the English, but the panic in Amsterdam, regarded as the soundest and steadiest Stock exchange in Europe, convinced them that the crisis had already arrived.
It is regarded as probable that the crash on the American Stock exchange Friday and Saturday, when blue-ribbon issues were carried down from 10 to 15 points, was based on reports from Amsterdam and reasonable speculation as to what would follow in London. If so, it may be that some of the ill effects on the British pound sterling—next to the American dollar the greatest monetary standard in the world—have already been discontinued.

Mahatma Gandhi Spends Sunday in Picnicking

LONDON.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi went picnicking Sunday and it was the most peaceful day he has spent since he arrived in London a week ago to plead the cause of nationalist India at the second round-table conference.
After early morning prayers, the mahatma, accompanied by his secretary and about a dozen friends went by motor to the historic Epping forest, a few miles from London in Essex.
There are scantily clad Indian leaders walked and talked with friends in haunts where royalty once hunted. He ate his customary frugal lunch, goats milk curds so fragrant that it made picnicking no problem for him. After a day spent in the fresh air and sunshine he returned late in the afternoon much refreshed.

Aerial Acrobats Lead in Violating U. S. Rules

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Leading offenders on the government's docket of misbehaving fliers are violators of aerobatic provisions of the air commerce regulations.
During the second quarter of 1931, there were 65 violations of the aerobatic rules followed in number by 41 offenses against the low flying clause.
Three hundred and ten violations were dealt with during the period, three fewer than the preceding quarter. Fines were assessed to the sum of $600 while some fliers were meted out reprimands, suspensions, and revocations or denials of licenses.

Former Opera Star to Quit Profession

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Anna Case, former metropolitan opera soprano now the wife of Clarence Mackay, the capitalist, Sunday announced her intention to quit the professional concert field.

Secretary of State Calls For Opinion On Acreage Limit

Passage of Texas 30 Per Cent Bill Conceded at Austin.

MAY FOLLOW SUIT

Parnell Will Not Call Special Session Until Farmers Express Selves

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Parnell called upon Arkansas farmers Monday for expressions as to whether a special legislative session should be convened to enact cotton relief legislation to conform with that which is expected to be adopted by the Texas legislature.
Special representatives sent by the governor to Austin to study relief plans before the Texas legislature recommended Sunday night that a special session be called in Arkansas to pass a acreage limitation law similar to the one awaiting almost certain approval in Texas.
Limit 30 Per Cent
The law that is to be enacted at Austin early this week will limit cotton planting in 1932 and 1933 to 30 per cent of the cultivated area. This is expected to curtail cotton production by about 50 per cent.
Governor Parnell told the Associated Press from his farm at Dermott Monday that until assured that the majority of the farmers want such a law he would take no action.
Texas Agrees on Plan
AUSTIN, Texas.—(AP)—Over the week-end the Conference Committee on Cotton agreed on a bill to limit 1932 cotton acreage to 30 per cent of the land in cultivation this year.
The Conference Committee was the result of contradictory bills being adopted in the Texas house and senate, one asking a limit of 33 1-3 per cent, and the other 25 per cent.
The Conference Committee will send the compromise bill to both houses Monday, where quick passage is regarded as certain.

Cotton Eases Off During Last Week

3-8 Cent Lower for Period Ending Sept. 18, U. S. Report Shows

MEMPHIS.—(U. S. Department Agriculture)—The cotton market during the period September 12 to 18th was fairly active with quotations at the end of the week about 3-8c lower than the close of the week before.
Demand seemed to be spotted, ranging from only fair of good. The basis for spot cotton was said to be irregular being easier in some markets than in others. This condition was said to be largely attributable to the continued slow movement of the crop coupled with inquiries in some sections from merchants for covering early new crop commitments.
Inquiries seemed to be centered largely on the white grades strict low middling and above in lengths 7-8 inch and 15-16 inch.
According to the Weather Bureau for the week ending September 18th the weather in the cotton belt was unusually favorable for picking and ginning but notwithstanding harvest was indicated generally as rather slow.
There were local reports of producers storing their cotton without ginning.
Average price middling 7-8 inch on the ten markets September 18th 5.79c compared with 6.00c September 11th and 10.19c on the corresponding day previous season.
Reports of spot cotton by the ten markets for the week amounted to 223,401 bales compared with 235,716 for the like week last season. Exports to September 18th this season amounted to about 500,000 bales, against about 850,000 for the corresponding period last season.
According to the Bureau of Census domestic consumption for the month of August amounted to 425,819 bales, compared with 352,628 for August 1930.
According to the same source the quantity of cotton on hand August 31 in domestic consuming establishments amounted to 840,000 bales compared with 1,000,000 on same date a year ago, and in public storage and at compresses there were 4,400,000 bales against 3,500,000 last season.

Watermelon Queen and Her Maids

The 1931 Southwest Arkansas Fair formally opens at 8 o'clock Monday night, with grandstand acts, military attractions and a fireworks display, and Tuesday it will take on state wide importance with the celebration of Watermelon Jubilee day.

With Secretary of State Ed F. McDonald representing Governor Parnell at the Queen ceremony, there will be many other officials and visitors from other sections of the state.

Monday afternoon the Fair Grounds were a bee-hive of activity, silver exhibitors put the finishing touches on booths and displays.

Although the Monday night show is always given, the first afternoon event will not be held until Tuesday.

Parks to Crown Queen

The first high-light of the fair will be the coronation of Queen Dorothy of Stamps, at the Watermelon Jubilee.

With Mr. McDonald, there will be present Congressman Tilden B. Parks of Camden, to whom falls the honor of crowning this year's Watermelon Queen.

Although some fairs have been discontinued this year, notably the Arkansas State Fair at Little Rock, officials of the Southwest Arkansas Fair association are optimistic over the outlook for the local event.

Mad Good Showing

The Hope fair made a good showing last year, in spite of the drought, with a net loss of only about $2,000, against terrific losses sustained by the state fair and the fairs of other sections.

The Southwest Arkansas Fair is the largest to be held in the state this year, and is expected to draw thousands from 25 southwestern counties.

The Watermelon Queen event alone made direct contact with the citizens of six counties, and because of its long and successful history this year's Fair will command a large following in a year when fairs are few, are far between.

Hoover Appeals for U.S. Economy

President Addresses American Legion at Detroit, Pressing Alarm Over Federal Deficit and Asking for Holiday on Additional Federal Grants

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—President Hoover Monday called upon the American Legion to enlist in a peace-time fight for government economy designed to lead the world out of its business depression.

Solemnly warning the annual convention against the "grave risks" of increasing federal expenditures either through further veterans' aid or other legislation, the president described the world economic crisis as "second only to a war."

He expressed confidence that "by united action we will lead the world in recovery."

The president pointed out that the treasury is faced with another large deficit as income taxes have declined 50 per cent since the prosperity period and the nation is carrying at the same time "a huge and necessary burden of public works to aid the unemployed," special aids to agriculture, and increased benefits to World war veterans.

Tragedy of Royal Love

It is pretty hard on the children when their parents are kings and queens. Especially when they reach the marriageable age. They can't ask a cherubic Cupid to do some straight shooting for them. They have to hope that there are nice young princes or pretty princesses with a sense of humor and good dispositions waiting around to get married, too.

The announcement that King Carol II of Rumania has been his friend, M. Manoilescu, to Rome to seek the hand of Princess Maria Francesca, youngest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, brings the marriage problems of the sons and daughters of the reigning houses of Europe into the spotlight again. Even though the Rumanian government has denied the attempted engagement in this particular case, such is the customary method of royal wooing, so the point remains the same.

Maria Francesca is only 17. She has hardly had time to get a thrill out of watching the soldiers on dress parade, in the way that even a prince can do. But she may be married to a king from another land.

There are so many things Maria Francesca has never done. Being a princess, of course, she never can. She can't answer the honk of a gay sports roadster at the palace curb, and go skipping down an enchanted road in a world of moonlight and roses and, well, if not love, the first youthful stirrings of the grand emotion.

She can't wear a fraternity pin on her blouse, or go to a football scrimmage and cheer for a certain helmeted figure whom she is meeting after the game. She can't get excited when she meets a handsome young man, for she knows that unless his coat of arms grew up along with her father's throne they aren't going to see much of each other.

Being the child of a king has its limitations. Now and then some brave member of the group, who has fallen in love with a commoner, manages to pull off a regular American marriage, founded on love alone. Now and then, the princess and the king or prince she is marrying are really as much in love as though they had nothing to do with political intrigue.
Not often, though.

Royal life is hard on a princess when she is small. She can't get chocolate bars from the freckle-faced boy across the aisle at school or go coasting with the on who lives next door, regardless of whether his father is the cousin of the king or not related at all.

But when she grows up and has to have a canned-romance life is even more difficult. That is unless Cupid gets busy and treats the princess and the prince or king exactly like he does other young people.

Chance Worth Taking

An extremely interesting experiment in criminology is proceeding in Ohio these days.

A bond salesman was arrested at Akron last spring for forging a $15 check. He complained that his mental condition was not right. Nine years ago, he said, he had been hit on the head while playing football, and the injury had left him unable to distinguish between right and wrong.

The Ohio authorities decided to take him at his word.
They sent him to the state hospital for observation, and psychiatrists agreed that he was indeed handicapped by a skull injury.

So, the other day, the prisoner was operated on. A bit of bone that had been pressing on his brain was removed, and after the operation it was announced that he would not be prosecuted on the forgery charge.

It is perfectly possible, of course, that the authorities were imposed on. It is noteworthy, for instance, that Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago football team—the team on which the man said he was playing when he got hurt—declines that the man ever played for Chicago. It may be that he has cleverly put one over on prosecutors and doctors.

But that isn't the point. The point is that the authorities were willing to experiment—willing to take a chance on being fooled in order to try to rehabilitate a criminal and make him a useful member of society again.

A chance of that kind is abundantly worth taking. Suppose that the man should turn out to be a faker, after all. One more crook, among the thousands that infest the land, is hardly worth worrying about. On the other hand, if it develops that he and the doctors were right, Ohio has developed an honest, law-abiding citizen in place of a convict—an exchange that is always worth making.

Society is none too willing to take chances of this kind.
That is one reason why so many criminals are second and third offenders. We shall never meet the problem of the "crime wave" intelligently until we are more ready to risk something in dealing with men who have broken the law.

The Bread Winner!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NFA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The two greatest nations of the world are more or less upset about something known as the "dole."

A proposed 10 per cent cut in Great Britain's weekly "dole" to her unemployed has caused a political upheaval.

Some of our own statesmen are using the term as a scare-word to describe any federal appropriation which Congress might make this winter toward relief of the hungry and destitute.

The dictionary describes a dole as that which is distributed or a limited portion, especially a gift of charity.

The British "dole" is the unnatural outgrowth of a national unemployment system established before the World War, under which payments to the unemployed now amount to a large proportion of the national budget.
Forces in this country opposed to federal relief intimate that Britain's "dole" has aggravated her economic troubles and that congressional appropriations to relieve distress would have a similar effect and would saddle a similar system on this country.

At least two fundamental differences have to be recognized. First, those who urge federal relief this winter are not pressing for an unemployment insurance system but a sum of money which would be distributed where most needed. Second, British law—but not American law—provides for the maintenance of the destitute under the poor relief system. When some 2,000,000 Britons became employed by 1921 their government had to decide whether these workers and their families should be cared for by the poor law machinery or whether the setup of the unemployment insurance system should be utilized to provide the maintenance. Among reasons for choosing the latter alternative were fear that local taxes would often be inadequate for the emergency, realization that great numbers of persons would be humiliated at though unemployed through no fault of theirs and a belief that the emergency would prove temporary.

England, in 1911, became the first nation to adopt a compulsory-contributory employment insurance law. It then covered about 2,250,000 workers. For each person so insured the employer paid into the benefit fund 5.1 cents weekly, the employee 5.1 cents and the exchequer 3.4 cents. Benefits of $1.70 weekly were started in 1913 to such unemployed as had contributed to the fund for six months.

The system was experimental and had no chance to work out because the war came. Pre-war and wartime employment were good and at the end of the war the fund had an undistributed balance of $75,000,000. There was little call on the fund because England was paying special postwar out-of-work allowances amounting to some $300,000,000.

In 1920, with unemployment only around 500,000, the system was extended to nearly all but agricultural workers, covering 11,000,000. Employers and employees each paid 8 cents a week, the government 4 cents. Benefits were raised to $3.65 for men and $2.92 for women. The scheme was still held on an actuarial basis, with benefits claimable definitely related to contributions paid in. Parliament still holds the theory that England will return to that basis and that eventually it will be possible to stop using the system as an instrument of general relief.

Requirements for previous contributions from beneficiaries have been thrown off since 1921—the government standing the immense difference in expense. Contributions lately have been 15 cents from employers, 15 from exchequer and 14 from employed workers, but the dole cost $495,- 000,000 in the fiscal year 1931 and employers and employees combined paid in only $145,000,000.
Benefits, meanwhile, have been raised until a man with a wife and a couple of children is paid about a dollar a day.

Fleischman Company Is Fined on Booze Charge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(AP)—A fine of $2000 was imposed upon the Fleischman's Yeast company by Federal Judge Fitzhugh here Friday in a liquor conspiracy case. A plea of "nolo contendere" neither denying nor admitting the charges, was made by the company.

The conspiracy case involved the yeast company, the late Dominic Tarrow, head of a Macoupin county bootleg ring, who met a violent gangster death, and the Corn Products Refining corporation which was fined $10,000 on an earlier "nolo contendere" plea.

It was charged that the corn products company and the yeast company provided Tarrow with products specifically designed to be used in manufacturing illegal liquor.

Negro Captured in the Slaying of Texas Youth

WICHITA FALLS, Texas.—(AP)—A negro was captured late Friday by a posse searching for the slayers of Audrey Nodurft who was fatally wounded September 9, when two negroes attacked him and his girl companion.

Officers said they were practically certain the negro was one of the attackers. He was placed in the county jail and rushed out of town within a few minutes.

The negro was caught in a wholesale grocery house where Vera Smith, Nodurft's fiancée, was employed as a stenographer. Posse members found him on the edge of the city and chased him for several blocks. As the race neared the grocery, the officers opened fire and the negro man ran into the building to hide. Miss Smith was not on duty at the time.

Texas Show Brick Walls Defy Water Penetration

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Water does not easily pass through solid brick walls during a rain, tests conducted at the bureau of standards indicate.

When interior walls of brick buildings become wet during a rain it is more likely that the water has entered through open spaces between the brick and mortar rather than directly through them, says bureau experts.

Civil War Vets Make "Whoopee"

Still "fit as a fiddle" despite their age, these two Civil War veterans were the life of the party at the national encampment of the G. A. R. at Des Moines, Iowa. W. H. Toms, right, of Nevada, Iowa, a former cavalryman, won the title of "The Spirit of the G. A. R." and Major O. E. Barber, left who is 104, threw a "whangdoodle" party, which his friends say was a decided success.

Eight Men Outstanding For Chief of Legion

DETROIT.—(AP)—Officials of the American Legion arriving here Friday for the national convention which opens Monday said eight men were outstanding at present in the field for election to succeed Ralph T. O'Neill as national commander.

The candidates were said to be Edgar B. Dunlap, Gainesville, Georgia; John Elden, Cleveland, Ohio; Louis A. Johnson, Clarksburg, West Virginia; Henry S. Stevens, North Carolina; George W. Malone, Reno, Nev.; Rice W. Means, Colorado publisher and former United States senator; J.
Ray Murphy, Iowa attorney, and Elmer O'Neill, Kentucky.

A delegation from Georgia arrived early to set up headquarters for the campaign in Dunlap's behalf.

Of 3,438 women students attending University of California at Los Angeles, 1,338 are employed at some remunerative work.

Canada has 58,200 miles of coastline.

Foreign Population of U. S. Increases Slowly

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The foreign born white population of the United States has increased only eight-tenths of one per cent since 1920.

Census bureau statisticians who computed this percentage increase by making an adjustment for a different method of figuring Mexicans, noted also a decided falling off of percentages from Ireland, Germany and Scandinavian countries, and a marked increase from Canada, Italy and Mexico.

Youth and Would-Be Rescuer Are Drowned

BRADFORD, Ark.—(AP)—A youth and a man attempting to rescue him drowned Sunday while swimming in a creek near here with two other boys.
The dead are Luther Mort, 15, and Robert Burnett, 40. Their bodies were recovered.

the street will be collected by the city

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Norma leaped against the arm of theavenport, watching him. Her brightly red lips quivered slightly. "I wouldn't mind," she said slowly. "If I were going with you, I wouldn't be afraid then."

"But you know it's against company rules. And Dad isn't willing to make the slightest exception for me. That's all right; I don't want him to. I'm going into this thing, Norma, to show him I'm not the dub he thought I was. I tell you it's a great chance! Why, look, he's going to begin paying me $75 a week right away! Where could I ever hope to get at the kind of thing I've been doing? Blossom-dolls! Why, you'd be living in a dumb like this the rest of your life!"

HIS sweeping gesture expressed disgust at everything about them. The apartment was in a rather miserable state. The living room, suddenly transformed into dressing quarters, was littered with Mark's discarded clothing, stray towels and toilet articles. Drawers of the commode that during daytime hours was masked by a dignified covering were pulled out and garments overflowed from one of them. Norma's little black mules occupied the center of a chair. A closet door had been left open, revealing clothing on hangers and the bathroom, also visible, was in disorder. This was what always happened when Mark dressed for a state occasion. The limited space in the apartment made it worse.

"I don't want anything but to be sure you'll come back to me, Mark!
We've been—happy here!" Suddenly the young man caught her up beside him. "Of course I'll come back, darling! Nothing in the world could keep me away from you. Of course I'll come back!"

"Oh, if I could only be sure!"
"But I will! As if anything could keep me away! Why, Norma, there's a tear—we can't have anything like that. We—Good Lord, who's that?"

The bell from the entrance of the building rang a second time, louder than the first.
"Well, see," Norma said quickly and went to answer. A moment later she turned. "It's your father's chauffeur," she said. "He's downstairs waiting for us."

"Oh—Harvey! Might have known Mother'd send him. Well, that's 10 minutes saved. Harvey'll get us there quicker than any taxi."

Neither spoke for the next few moments. Norma helped Mark locate hat and gloves, transfer his keys to the right pocket and at the last minute grab a handkerchief.
She slipped the short velvet wrap about her shoulders.

"Ready?" she asked.
"Yes, I'm ready. Come on—let's go!"

When they were settled in the luxurious motor car Norma found Mark's hand. "I'll feel better about things," she whispered, "after tonight."

"You mean—talking it over with Mother and Dad?"
The girl nodded.

"Sure you will?" Mark agreed.
"You're going to like them, Norma.
They're—well, Dad's a lot different than you think he is. And you

"I've told you everything's going to be all right!" he insisted, attacking the second tie and making a better job of it. "You're just looking on the black side of things.
Instead of five weeks it may be four."

Norma leaped against the arm of

Going to School
In the busy noon of life, Mid its restless fever strife, As your pathways shall divide, From the roof-tree wandering wide Memories of those morning hours, Song of birds and scent of flowers, Blend of lambs and song of rill, Will come sweetly o'er you still,
And your thoughts go yearning back O'er that slumber childhood track, When the longest road you knew Was the one that led you to School-house just two miles away, Where the birch and rule held

Huskies Without Captain Due to Tie in Balloting

SEATTLE.—(AP)—The University of Washington football team will play through the 1931 season without a regularly elected captain. Boy Who Brings Farm Products Enters School BARBOURVILLE, W. Va.—(AP)—A youth who came off a farm to enroll as a student at Morris-Harvey College and who brought a two year old steer, five bushels of potatoes and 30 bushels of apples along with him to pay his school expenses, was a full-fledged student today.

The steer was butchered and the potatoes and apples were in the college storage bins for use in the cafeteria.

President Leonard Riggelman recently announced farm products would be accepted for student expenses because of economic conditions.

New Orleans Restaurant Owner Fatally Attacked With Carving Knife

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Because she was not permitted to accompany a proposed fishing party, police said, Mrs. Dolores La Marr, 35, plunged a carving knife into the heart of Henry La Marr, 45, early Sunday in his restaurant. She was jailed on a police charge of murder pending investigation by the district attorney's office.

The fishing trip when first planned included Verdilliant, Mrs. La Marr, her daughter, Mae, 19, and Ben Wilson, 54. When told she could not go, Mrs. La Marr was said to have asked her daughter to remain home, and an argument ensued between the mother and Verdilliant.

"I only meant to scare him," police quoted Mrs. La Marr. "When he grabbed me by the arm and started jerking me I forgot everything and hit him with the knife. I didn't know he was even hurt."

Verdilliant, who employed the woman's daughter as a waitress, is said

Crash-Proof Fuel Tanks Sought for Plane Safety

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Crash-proof fuel tanks for airplanes are being sought by scientists of the bureau of standards.

Experiments are being made with a tank lining of synthetic material resembling rubber but insoluble in gasoline or oil. The material is elastic and strong.

Development of tanks which will not burst and deluge an airplane with fuel in case of crash is the goal.

Radio Fan Letter Hint at Tragedy of Real Life

NEW YORK.—(AP)—A great deal of pathos is to be found in letters listeners write to broadcast stations.

A WABC-CBS entertainer received one which read:

"When I heard your voice for the first time, I was sure that it was my brother John singing. I have not seen him in several years, therefore you see it is both a sorrow and a pleasure in waiting and listening to you, wondering all the time if it could possibly be John."

"Would you be so kind as to answer and give me great happiness or else a keen disappointment. I feel that I must know."

The letter came from Savannah, Ga., and was signed by a woman.

However, the singer was not "John."

PAINFUL WEAK CONDITION

"I was weak and could not do my work," writes Mrs. C. O. Sutton, of Elizabeth, Ind.

"I had pains in my back and side. It seemed like when I would get up, I would drag around to do my work, and had bad headache. My mother told me to try Cardui. She had taken it herself, and had found it a good medicine. I took several bottles of Cardui and it helped me very much."

Cardui is a purely vegetable, "building-up" medicine. Thousands of women have reported that it helped them to overcome certain womanly troubles due to weakness. Sold at drug stores.

"That bully old slogan hits me just right—

... no bamboozlin' about that!"

SURE! When a word fits, you know it! "Satisfy" just fits CHESTERFIELD. A smoker picks up a package, and he likes its neat appearance—no heavy inks or odors from ink. That satisfies him.

Then he examines a Chesterfield. It is well-filled; it is neat in appearance; the paper is pure white. And that satisfies him.

He lights up. At the very first puff he likes the flavor and the rich aroma. He decides that it tastes better—neither raw nor over-sweet; just pleasing and satisfying.

Then he learns it is milder. That's another way of saying that there is nothing irritating about it. And again he's satisfied!

Satisfy—they've got to satisfy! The right tobaccos, the CHESTERFIELD kind, cured and aged, blended and cross-blended, to a taste that's right. Everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is the best that money can buy and that science knows about. CHESTERFIELDS do a complete job of it. They Satisfy!
